John's vision for the church: His number one goal is to re-energize the church and to grow our congregation through spreading what most of us know is the grace and love that our church has to offer. He believes there are many people who are searching for knowledge and belonging. He also believes the Episcopal Church has a wonderful, genuine message which he wants to spread throughout our community. One single individual cannot do this alone. It is going to take the effort of everyone in the church to help spread our message.
